Dear Sir

In your reply of Feb 22<sup>d</sup>, to my letter to Mr Corcoran, requesting permission for Mr Guillaume to make a copy of the portrait of John Randolph, you wrote "Mr Corcoran assents to your request, but the place where the copy is to be made is yet to be decided, of which decision you will be notified".

I will be obliged to you to inform me whether your decision has been arrived at & what it is, as I await that information to give the order to Mr Guillaume.

Respectfully yours

My dear Mr. MacLeod.

A few days since visiting in the studio of Mr. R. Swain Gifford, his superb landscape, "The Coast of New England", his Academy picture last year, is declared to be what a fine place the Corcoran faller would be to exhibit the picture - and in thinking of it since, I concluded to write you presuming to suggest the idea in my own responsibility - and for the sole reason that I think it would be bad that such a work by our leading American landscape painter should not to place for a while when it would teach a great lesson to artists and many others who probably would never see it unless at the National Gallery. I mentioned the subject to Mr. Gifford, as it actured him, but do not know his exact views on the subject. Simply for Mr. Mason I give the idea is submitted to you, thinking you might care to mention it on the subject.

I plan for Boston in a few days, then to Chicago, but returning to New York in a few days.
Hope from California is progressing satisfactorily, with kind wishes.
